“ Shaleece Lachelle was one of my cousins. She grew up with us (insider). But more than that, she practically lived with my brothers and me when we were little kids. She was funny, smart, courageous, and the life of the party. She was the cousin you could call when you were upset. She would make it her business to either make you laugh or laugh at you. There are so many memories that I can share with you about the corny tea parties or cooking on the Easy-Bake Oven... but in the end, Shaleece was everything to me. God, my husbae, and then the Walkers. And she was DEFINITELY a Walker, through and through. I was proudest of her when she earned her High School Diploma. Despite all of her decisions and challenges, in her bright mind, she made the intelligent decision to earn her primary education credential: a move that inspired many in our family to do the same. She was... INSPIRATIONAL and she will be missed by all, but especially me.
