Nothing happens by coincidence. I was 25yrs old looking to buy my first home. And when I came to view my home for the first time, you were there. And ever since that very 1st moment you have shielded me like I was your own daughter. Before living on my own, I thought a neighbor was just a person who lived close to you. Never would I have imagined a neighbor being a confidant, a protector, a father figure, etc. The list goes on. I will miss the porch talks, the constantly checking on me when absolutely nothing was wrong, grabbing my packages when i told you there was no need to, the happy spirit that you always spread throughout the neighborhood, pulling up and saying “Heyyy Neighbor”, and the nonstop reassurance that you would always be there. I took so much for granted thinking that you would always be there. I never imagined that one day you wouldn’t. You taught me how to be a NEIGHBOR, and not just someone who lives next door. You always encouraged me to be the best woman I could be. You gave me sound advice like a father would give to a daughter and I am forever grateful for that. There is an emptiness at my home knowing that you are no longer next door. Sometimes people don’t realize how bonded they are to someone until they lose them, and I realize how much of a blessing it was to have known you for the last 4 years. This is a tough loss for me but i’ll find comfort in knowing that God’s purpose for you in my life was to teach me to always be kind, and to redefine the word NEIGHBOR. I will forever remember all you have taught me and I pray to see you again one day. Praying for your family and friends.

Forever your neighbors,
Britney and Moo
