“ Neil was a terrifically insightful, wickedly funny man who spent much of his life facilitating African-American economic empowerment. He was a touchstone for me when I was a Baltimore Sun business reporter, as well as a dear friend. I extend my condolences to his family and to anyone else fortunate enough to have benefitted from Neil's boundless wisdom.

“ My condolences to Mr. Muldrow's family and friends. The lessons I learned from Mr. Muldrow decades ago regarding entrepreneurship, I still use today. He convinced me that my service was worthy and gave me the inspiration to follow my dream, and that I did. Thank you Mr. Muldrow.

“ When Ackneil moved to Baltimore from Winston Salem, North Carolina, he lived with his Uncle Ed Muldrow and Ed's wife Mary Ella on Wrenwood Avenue, in Northeast Baltimore. My husband, Lloyd, and I, and our first three children lived next door. Ackneil would talk to us over the fence and kid with the children when we were in the back yard. He had a very friendly personality, and we all liked him very much. He babysat the children for us once. That was around 1958 or '59. He became a member of Pi Omega chapter of Omega Psi Phi Fraternity, my husband Lloyd's chapter. Going on three years ago, my husband of over 60 years passed, We had known Ackneil since he came to Baltimore. Ackneil worked hard and achieved success in a number of careers. The admiration and respect we both had and I still have for Ackneil grew over those years. He was a man of honesty, sincerety, integrity, and hard work. May you rest in peace, Ackneil. Fondly, Josephine Alston

“ Neil was a trusted and valued member of the community. I remember our first long ride from a meeting at Morgan State to his offices in 1988 where we discussed the importance of financing minority-owned businesses to level the playing field in public and private contracting. His insights helped to pave the way for new and innovative methods of assuring that minority entrepreneurs could compete successfully on projects large and small.

To the entire Muldrow family, the extended family of Samuel Myers, Sr. sends their condolences and prayers.

“ I first met Mr. Muldrow when he was a new teacher at Booker T. Washington Junior High School. He never taught me but taught my sister. I laugh when I remember how all the girls in school had a crush on the fine Science Teacher. I reminded him of this when I saw him at St. Katherine's. He was always a good teacher and later an all around nice person. His phone calls to me when I was hospitalized and his encouragement when my mother passed away were a blessing. May he rest in peace. God bless his family.

“ I am sorry to hear of his passing. He was a science teacher at Booker T junior high where we first met. He became a early client of our company when he lead Development Credit fund and later a trusted advisor. When I last spoke with him in late September he was still offering advice. Rest In Peace my friend.

“ I am saddened to hear of the passing of Mr. Ackneil Muldrow. It has been many years since Mr. Muldrow taught me and others science at Booker T. Washington Jr. High School. He was one of my favorite teachers. He always challenged me to do better. I remember playing against him in a teacher vs. varsity basketball game. I believe he was a North Carolina A & T graduate. I remember that game even though it was probably 1962 or so. Mr. Muldrow had an impact on my life because of the demands he required of me. I am grateful. I will never forget him.

“ I was so sadden to hear of Neil's passing. We first met when I joined the Baltimore Marketing Association, sometime back in the '80's.He was a great leader and visionary, with a warm personalty and passion for helping others succeed. We often shared stories about North Carolina and mutual friends

*He surely will be missed.
Peace and blessings to his beautiful wife and the entire Muldrow family.~
