“ Its been almost 8 years since you transitioned. I still miss you today as I did them. Some days the silence of your absence is so loud. I miss the sound of your voice, your laugh, how you called any and every body yo. If you could only see our daughter now. She's grown so much and looks so much like you. I see so much of you in her mannerisims, even her dancing has you written all over it. We speak of you often, I want to make sure she always remembers how wonderful you were and how much you loved us. She just turned 14 this past weekend and what would have been our 15th wedding anniversary is coming up on Thursday. I cry every single year because I still cant believe that youre no longer with us. I love you the same today as I always have. You will forever remain in my heart. Rest well my love.

“ I'm very sorry to hear about your loss. Though I may not have a memory of Adrian, I know most certainly he lives in God's memory. And I'm sure we all agree that, that is the safest place for anyone to be. Especially in light of what God's word promises at John 5:28, 29 where we read: "Do not marvel at this, because the hour is coming in which all those in the memorial tombs [or God's memory] will hear his voice and come out." This is a promise from God, from which we can gain much comfort. If you would like to learn more about bible truths like this and more feel free to email me at scottstone86@gmail.com

“ I remember Adrian as a young man that went to school with my son Greg. I watched him grow into a young man. He would come to our house and my son Greg would cut his hair before they went out. I used to tease him all the time. My husband and I affectionately called him "big black". He laughed every time. He had the most beautiful smile. My son Greg called Adrian "Too Smooth." He earned that name because he was on a different level. I understand he was mediator and always thought with good common sense. When I heard he got married, I was over joyed for him. Adrian will be missed... His smile will be missed, his hearty laugh will be missed, and his genuine personality will be missed. But his memory will forever live within our hearts and minds. Peace, Blessings and our Love be with you as cross over to Jordon and into the bosom of Jesus! We Love You Adrian!

My brother died last year and his birthday was dec 7. I think about you everyday since your passing. Somedays is harder than others I miss you very much and I love you. Its a not a day that don't go pass that I dont think about you. SOme times it feel unreal to me that you gone. But God had something in planned for you better than we can imagine. I tip my hat to you and salute you with crown because you deserve it. SOme times we don't get to express how much we care for a person until they gone but you knew we loved you so much we didn't have to say it but god loved you more. YOu had a good life and family I prayed for you everyday. But your jouney and legacy continues. I was just really thinking about you atoosmooth. Ps your daughter is growing up so quickly but ill make sure she will grow up to be the woman you would have wanted her to be
