

Agnes Jackson

December 19, 1927 - August 3, 2023

AGNES BALIY JACKSON, born on December 19th, 1927, entered the world as a beacon of warmth and grace. She was the beloved daughter of the late Rose Smith and Roosevelt Williams. Agnes's journey was marked by love and devotion, both as a wife and mother, leaving an indelible mark on those she touched.

In 1976, Agnes united in matrimony with the late Melvin J. Jackson, embarking on a journey of shared experiences and boundless affection. The love they shared was a testament to the enduring power of companionship. Together, they raised two children, Rosemary Howard and Wilford Howard, who predeceased them, creating a family bond that was unbreakable.

Wilford, in turn, left behind a legacy of his own, survived by his two cherished sons, Matthew Howard and Joseph Howard. The torch of Agnes's love and wisdom has been passed down through the generations, shaping the lives of her descendants in immeasurable ways.

Beyond the roles of wife and mother, Agnes was known for her warm spirit and open heart. She found immense joy in hosting family gatherings, creating moments of connection that became cherished memories. Her capacity to bring people together was a testament to her nurturing and caring nature.

Agnes dedicated her professional life to care-giving, a reflection of her innate compassion and desire to support others. Her work as a caretaker was a true reflection of her character, touching lives in a deeply personal and meaningful way.

On August 3rd, Agnes peacefully departed from this world, surrounded by the love that she had so generously given throughout her life. Her presence will forever be missed, but her legacy of love, resilience, and compassion will continue to shine brightly in the hearts of all who knew her.

As we mourn the loss of Agnes Baliy Jackson, we also celebrate the extraordinary life she lived and the countless lives she touched. Her memory will forever remain an inspiration to us all.
