“ Alishia,
Mr. D here--you were my student for multiple years at Chesapeake. Every night when I go to bed I still say a prayer that you're resting in peace. I, and many others, still haven't gotten over the fact that you were taken from this world far too early. Your light shined bright everywhere you went, and I will never forget your smile and your zest for life. You made our lives better. Rest easy, we miss you.

“ I remember when I was first met you at work. You smiled, introduced yourself and asked had anyone gave me a tour of your store. You immediately begin to explain all the ins and outs, and how the store operated. While showing me the store, your phone rung. All I remember was that you burst into laughter, and were smiling from ear to ear. As you walked towards me, you said “My son is so silly”. I could tell you were happy, happy to be a mom. And instead of showing me the store we spent the next hour talking about our kids, parenthood, and our future goals. (This is all within maybe an hours time of meeting you). Alishia I’ll never forget that. To Alishia’s family and friends, while I didn’t know her long, just know she left a very big impact on me. Alishia was ALWAYS smiling, ALWAYS laughing, and she even attempted to rap for me (Biggies “Hypnotize”...lol). My grandmother always told me to “Surround myself with those that shine a positive light on you”. Your were so full of life, so eager to take on the world. Alishia was a positive spirit that just wanted to do right by her and those closest to her. I know The Most High is definitely using you to spread joy, and laughter. Rest Easy.....

Happy birthday my beautiful angelic soul. I miss you dearly! I still have dreams about us hanging out being goofy and going to the mall shopping until the malls closed. I miss our conversations and text messages. I love you my angelic soul.
Love always,
