

Alonzo Lamont Coleman Sr.

May 17, 1951 - June 29, 2013

Alonzo Lamont Coleman was born on May 17, 1951 to William Yow and the late Marie Coleman in Baltimore, MD. He was educated in Baltimore City Public Schools and graduated from Carver Vocational-Technical High School in 1971.

After high school he worked several jobs including one as a short order cook at Howard Johnson's. He took a job at Armco Steel in 1973, where he worked for 20 years, primarily as a crane operator. He retired from Armco in 1993 before taking on other work opportunities such as a truck driver, and most recently Food Depot employee.

He married Fannie Cornella Roles on Aug. 29, 1981. They had two children whom he adored, Alonzo Jr. and Courtney.

He loved studying chess and participating in tournaments. He enjoyed cooking as well as cooking shows. He also greatly enjoyed music and playing the guitar, Bible study, and travel, especially when it involved a long drive. Alonzo was also a tinkerer, enjoyed building computers and working on cars.

He is predeceased by his oldest brother, Robert Coleman and survived by his father, William Yow, stepmother, Larsteen Yow; a wife, Fannie; two children, Alonzo Jr. and Courtney; his brother Dwayne and Adrian; and sister, Ave; two nephews, a niece, a goddaughter, and a host of other family and friends.

He will be most remembered for his quiet and gentle way, and will be greatly missed
