“ *I send my sincere and heartfelt condolences to the family of Angela at this time. Death is truly a heartbreaking thing for a family to go through, and you have my deepest sympathy. Know that there is a God above, a loving father who is very real, and knows all of our pains and sorrows. We can turn to him at such times, because he is the God of all salvation who knows the ways out from death Psalm 68:20. One day your loved one will open her eyes once again, and you can be with her in peace and security forever. Jesus made this possible by giving his life in our behalf so that everyone exercising faith in him might not be destroyed, but have everlasting life. John 3:16. May you be comforted by the wonderful hope of the resurrection, and may your precious memories bring a smile to your face as you await that wonderful day of salvation. “ Erica, I'm the one who shared dinner with you and your mother at Ms. Margaret's. Was it Labor Day? Remember, the hamburgers took a long time to cook? I am so very sorry about your mother. Although I met her only a couple of times at Ms. Margaret's, she struck me as a truly good and gentle person, who loved you dearly. I am certain she is now with the angels and Our Savior and is no longer suffering. I know it must be terribly sad for you, not only to lose your mother, but also to have to leave your friends and Baltimore family. Be strong, and whenever you are in doubt, ask yourself what your mother would advise you to do. Keep her love and guidance with you, and you will succeed in becoming your own strong person, who would make your mother proud. You will be in my prayers. Sincerely, Ms. Elaine##imported-begin##Elaine Tsubota##imported-end##
