Anna made sure the family celebrated birthdays, holidays and went to church together as much as possible. She promoted organizing a large family thanksgiving dinner over the years until COVID prevented the gathering. Anna loved learning, she took continuing education classes at the local colleges. She read lots of books, particularly on health and wellness. She loved dancing at parties, family reunions, and other events and always loved telling a joke or two. She was a very committed and energetic member of the Perkins Resident Council.
