“ Missing you big brother💔

Deborah Kane - February 20, 2022 at 05:45 PM

“ You will always be present in our mind and hearts. Mom, dad, your two brothers and lil sis will miss your physical presence, your voice, your wild hair, your laugh, your conversations and your "storytelling"!

You had so many positive plans for yourself that we talked about...like moving this summer to a new complex with a pool and to be closer to York Rd for easier transportation. You even told me what furniture you were taking to the new apt. You were working on getting your drivers liscense, and even though you failed the first written test by two questions i told you don't give up and you said your not and was ready to take it again and could i pick you up another drivers book.

Sometimes in life things get in the way of our plans, but making and having plans is a sign of someone who wants to make and enjoy a better life for themselves!

I love you big bro💕 Long live Tonyrome!

“ I have fond memories of my cousin Tony when we was kids I remember looking up to my big cousin, taking that ride up the country in back of grand daddy red truck, going to the dam to swim, I remember times at family gatherings, he always was up to date on current happenings, always asked how I was doing, what was I doing, and oh those talks on that thing called life and the obstacles that got in the way, I Love him and he will be missed here on earth, R.I.P. Tony love u cuz Angie.....
