“ Losing someone is hard. Probably one of the hardest things I'll experience. But there's some kind of peace knowing that you're probably looking out and watching from above. You are not suffering anymore and knowing that is what keeps me hanging on. Now I'm not entirely sure what happens to you after you pass, but I do believe in spirits, and I think that they show up when you need them the most. So, even though we've lost you, a part of you is always with me.... Loving you forever...
