

Brenda Rae Cooper Hatchett

February 18, 1949 - April 13, 2009

Brenda Ray Holt Cooper Hatchett (a.k.a. “Butch” or “Brenda Ray”) was born on February 18, 1949 to the late James Holt and Minnie Key. Brenda departed this world on Monday, April 13, 2009. Brenda “Butch” was born in Boykins, Virginia where she attended Boykins Elementary and then Riverview High School. Shortly after high school Brenda moved to New York where she became a domestic engineer. Brenda later moved to Baltimore where she met and married Leon Cooper and was blessed with the union of “Fat Momma”, “Wic”, and “Hunk-a-but”. Also during this time they fostered two children, Yelosis Dixon and Michael Allen. In 2001 Brenda met and married Lorenzo Hatchett, and to this union there were no children. Brenda was a very fun-loving person, and anyone who had the pleasure of meeting her just once had a lasting impression. Besides Brenda’s fun-loving ways, she truly enjoyed life and family. Her warm and nurturing nature is what gave her the ability to be compassionate, devoted mother and pillar in the family. Her candor was her trademark (whether you liked it or not), along with her love for hats, cooking, dancing and singing in the choir. Brenda was a personal care provider for the State of Maryland for the past five years which just reinforced the caring and loving personality that she had. With this transition there is a missing piece in our hearts. Just look to your memories and know she’ll never be far apart. Brenda leaves behind to cherish her memory: her sister, Audrey Lynn Sebrell of Norfolk, Va.; brother, Floyd Holt Jr. of Camden, N.J.; five children, Tonya “Fat Momma” Cooper, Tarsha “Wic” Cooper, Terry “Hunk-a-but”

Cooper, Yelosis Dixon and Michael Allen; husband, Lorenzo Hatchett; ten grandchildren, DeShaun Casey, Bre'Schae Cooper, Brandon Cooper, Tiara Cooper, Marquise Cooper, Makhi Cooper, Kaela Briscoe, Tyrie January, Taylor Cooper and Nicole Cooper; along with a host of nieces, nephews, cousins and friends.
