“ To the Family, please accept my condolences. May you find comfort in the scriptures about God's promise of a resurrection. Revelation 21:4, tells us that Almighty God is going to wipe out every tear from our eyes and death will be no more. With these former conditions gone forever, we can then look forward to paradise. May this bring you and your family comfort during your loss.##imported-begin##Mrs. Howard##imported-end##

“ To Calvin's family; we are very sorry that we were unable to attend the services. Calvin's friendship will become a cherished memory. We all would keep in touch, but we had not spoken to Calvin in a few months, therefore, we were not aware of his last illness. Calvin will be missed greatly. He would come down, periodically and visit with us, even in route to other destinations. But as time past, the visits were fewer and fewer. As years past, our trips to Baltimore were less, but we always made time to see each other when chance permitted. Our heart's are greatly sadden, but God knows best. May God be with you in your time of sorrow.##imported-begin##Earl and Zenobia Austin##imported-end##
