

Carrie Romaine Solomon

August 23, 1918 - October 2, 2003

Carrie R. Solomon, beloved wife of the late Semore Solomon, was born on August 23, 1918 in Baltimore, County, Maryland. She departed this world on October 25, 2003 after a brief illness. She attended school in both Baltimore County and Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, where she lived for a while with her Aunt Carrie. During her life, she worked for the Bendix Corporation during World War II and Oldfields School in Sparks, Maryland. She was also a loving housekeeper for many years. Carrie had a passion for enjoying life to the fullest, loved reading (especially biographies), cooking (she was known for her crab cakes) and just being the "BEST" friend anyone could have. You could ask her anything, but be prepared because she would give you an honest answer/opinion. She leaves to mourn: her children, Ella Smith of Baltimore, Maryland, Sarah Salman of Harrisburg, Virginia, Sandra King of Baltimore, Maryland, Seymour Solomon of Grottoes, Virginia and Kenneth Solomon of Baltimore, Maryland; devoted nieces, Margaret and Kristin Williams; brother, John Q. Smith; three sisters, Mary Taylor, Alice Frazier and Helen Smith all of Baltimore, Maryland; a host of other relatives and friends.
