

Christopher Eppes

August 12, 1941 - December 8, 2018

Christopher Lorenzo Eppes was born on August 12, 1941 in Richmond, Virginia. His interests throughout his life were varied and wide. As a child his first interest was trains, having a large extended Lionel train set.

From that he went on to become interested in ants, having a huge collection of farms all conveniently stored and maintained in the basement. His next interest while a teenager was pigeons, having a large collection of pigeons whom he taught honing's skills.

As an adult he kept his interests in pigeons. When you would pull up on Gilmore Street the pigeons knew his car and would flock to the roofs when they saw him drive up, land on his shoulders and hands at which time he would feed them.

He would always carry a 50lb bag of bird seed in his trunk for them.

Christopher also had interests in making wine, often getting his friends to sample and taste his newest creations.

Christopher was also interested in baseball. Having an extensive collection of baseball memorabilia, cards, bats, souvenirs, particularly an Orioles fan, he could also be found enjoying home games via television. He was also a Raven fan.

Christopher could often be found in his outside living room in his brother's van with his brother in law, friends, brothers, brother-in-law, sharing a cocktail, sharing jokes, and spirited conversations that would go for hours. He had many, many friends in Sandtown. He would spend days off from work just congregating and talking with friends.

Christopher was a Rock N' Roll enthusiast also. He could cite dates, recordings, and recording groups quickly. He was always impressive in this endeavor. He was partial to the Do-Wop era, Anthony & the Imperials and Stephanie Mills.

Christopher was educated at Polytechnic High School and Towson State University. He was always interested in stocks and the sciences. Christopher worked for MTA for 39 years. He spent his final years as a resident of Pennsylvania with family and made many friends. He will be sorely missed by his huge family and friends.
