“ Clarence, I know you know that I did love you like I would have my own father. I came home today and all I was thinking if you could just show up around the same time. Living with us for the last year of your life gave me a great opportunity to not only know what it feels like having a father, but also knowing someone wants you to succeed. I miss that, today I came home and you did not come home which of course did not expect but know you are watching. My angle, I know while you are there you will meet my dad. Peter whose shoes you filled. I did not know what it felt having a father in you adult life you gave me that feeling that is incontrovertible.

I have a huge mishap that I would love to tell you how I do exactly feel and how we are trying our best to hold it together. Maya did say that you had gone to take care of the sugar and then you will be back. That I am going to leave alone. I could not believe you nurse said that. She truly loved you deeply sometimes I wondered where she was. Always making sure you was ok. Muduwa knows you are asleep in heaven because that is what I told him. He know you are there with Peter Parker he thinks he is my dad's brother. Z. has no clue but can not stay out of the basement.

I can not fathom the emptiness. I will always love you and try to correct you mistakes to better another. I will always loved your boys and girls faithfully. I can only hope they do the same. One thing as an angle on the other side can you please tell the folks up there to make sure the Ravens win another super bowl. I think its about time. And also if you can ask, we need a basketball team in the NBA from Baltimore.

I know you never go to bed early that is why I had to stay up to do this, Your work is done here, I did not know how many loved you but you sure was loved. I knew that, good night my friend. Every time I come home, It feels as though you are about to show up.

Watch us and get your rest. In peace.

Percy,
