

Classie Mae Colyar

October 23, 1913 - January 30, 2002

Classie Mae Colyar, daughter of the late Ed Mclver and Etta Harrington, was born on October 23, 1913, in Harnett County Sanford, North Carolina. She departed this life on January 30, 2002, after a lengthy illness at Sinai Hospital with her family, Pastor and close friends at her bedside. She received her education at Harnett County Ridgeway Elementary School in North Carolina. She attended Smithfield High School. Later she moved to New York where she meets Arthur Colyar. She was married to the late Arthur Colyar and adopted one son, Arthur Colyar Jr., known as (Artie). They lived in Brooklyn, New York, where they owned a Barber Shop and a Beauty Saloon. She was a great seamstress, too. Classie was known for speaking her mind and attending Bible Study when she was able at Calvary Baptist Church and Genesis Eldercare. Her friends at Bristol House Apartment called Her "Miss Sassy Classie," because she kept them laughing while playing games in there activity room. Family and friends will miss her. She leaves to mourn: her son, Arthur Colyar jr., of Las Vegas, Nevada; one granddaughter, Kayla Colyar of New York; three brothers, David Mclver, of Randallstown, MD, Elmer Mclver of Baltimore, MD and Robert Mclver, of Sanford, N.C.; four sisters, Kathleen Mclver of Baltimore,MD, Rose Jones of Philadelphia, PA, Velour Bryant and Evelyn Nicholas, of Sanford, N.C., two sisters-in-law, Julia Mclver of Randallstown, MD, and Ollie Mclver of Sanford, N.C., nieces, nephews, and a host of other relatives and friends.

“ The richness of the human experience is in what is handed down from one life to the next –not simple things of mortar and stone, but memories of what one said or felt or did. Live with your good memories, as they will add to your comfort, which comes from knowing that your grief is shared and understood.##imported-begin##The March Family and Staff##imported-end##
