“ In life we are blessed to have people in our lives that have made a significant impact on us. Some are personal, some are business, and some are both. In my 8 year journey with Essilor, I have had many such individuals. I have been blessed. Clement Sinclair one who I was privileged to able to call my friend. He was dedicated, hard working, caring, compassionate, and a true gentleman. I had the privilege of working with him from 2017 to 2024. We worked on many special projects together. One day I asked him to explain "simple networking" to me. He proceeded to explain that there are four sets of numbers in an IP address (192.168.000.001). The first set of numbers is the state you live in. The second set of numbers is the City you live in. The third set of numbers is the street you live on. And the fourth set of numbers is you home address number. As long as you all live in the same city, state, and street, then different house numbers can talk all they want, as long as there isn't more that 255 houses. This has stuck with me every since and made my journey to understanding networks fun and productive. We spent many late night all over this country working on special projects. He was an amazing mentor and friend. I will miss him dearly.
