“ Dear Tanra,

Losing one's mother can be the hardest challenge we face. The very bridge that brought you from eternity to time is now broken. The world can seem harsher and the pain can be intense.

I pray that during your time of bereavement that you find some good memory to hold onto to provide you with support as you adapt to your new normal. God still has you in His hand and you can lean on Him when no one understands or seem to care about your pain.

Like Ms. Daisy taking her rest, you too can rest knowing that you cared for your mother as much your body, mind, and spirit would allow. Now, it is time to truly live the life you imagined and to live according to the purpose that God has for you.

Even with this loss, YOUR story is not over. The best is yet to come!

Best and much love to you,

Darcie Davis

“ I will miss my aunt Daisy. She was always a pleasure to talk to. She loved the Lord so she rests in him.

My aunt always ended a conversation over the phone by saying that she loved my sister and I. We love her too.
