“ My heart goes out to you in your sorrow as you mourn the passing of your loved one. May our gracious heavenly father give you much comfort to help you to cope with your loss. One day soon he promises that the sting of death will no longer be a part of our lives. Then the scripture will be fulfilled: Death where is your victory? Death, where is your sting? 1st Cor 15:55. At that time, indeed, death will be swallowed up forever. Isaiah 25:8. What a joy it will be when families will be reunited with their loved ones again. May you find much strength and joy in God's wonderful promises.

“ Dear God: Purge them of their Sorrow. By your spirit please ease them of their loneliness, relieve them of their grief, clam their anger, and still their soul. Help them to remember their loved one, Lord, but don't let them wallow in pain. Lord make their memories sweet. Renew their spirit and give them patience within them self. Give them a friend who will listen, and above all, fill them with hope so they won't grieve. Amen
