“ I Met Ms Darlene a few times and I was always greeted with joy. I would have never known she was living her last days. I seen the joy and love she gave her family.

I'm the grandmother of her great grandchild. And my grandbaby loves her grandparents. You will never come to accept the people who leave your life after being all you have know since birth.

Grandmothers are special to us. I can't describe the pain of loose my grandmother and I hope her family accepts and finds peace.

This is not our fight, the fight is great than us. We have to stick together. Build each other up. You will only get one life. It's not light but with God it can be. Don't focus on today, focus on what's to come. Make it better. And love and protect your families. I will always be there for my grandchild making sure she is healthy and happy. Rich with knowing who she is. And she had great black woman for great grandparents.

Remember the fight is greater than what we see. If what we can see. Be bless humble and stick together.

And thank you March for serving our community.
