“ It is over a year later since God called you home. I still can't believe that you are gone. I still go in your room and stand in your closet and smell your clothes. What I would not do to have a chance to look in your eyes, see your beautiful smile and hear your voice. You captured my heart the moment you were born and took your first breath and even after you have gone to be with God you are still capturing my heart.

*I LOVE YOU ALWAYS. Your mother

“ You were my baby and one of the first boys I fell in love with the moment I saw your face after you were born! For a long time we were inseparable. We were never just cousins, you were much like my child until you thought you were too grown for that, lol! And thats why still to this day, girlfriends were off limits! You would always be mine until you were at least 18, no matter how big you got, if you liked it or not. I was so hard on you for your grades and school because I knew what you were capable of and sometimes we all need that push! I love you to death and forever!
