“ While I can't claim to have known Derwin as well as his family and close friends, I had the privilege of working with Derwin for six years. Over that time, I came to appreciate his kindness, his curiosity, and his thoughtful way of looking at the world.

Derwin had served in the Marines and spent time overseas, which gave him a unique perspective. He had an interest in different cultures, religions and philosophies - and we would talk about the ideas of Confucius and Buddha. It wasn't just knowledge for him - it was something he reflected on and carried with him in how he lived his life. My wife and I love to travel and I always looked forward to sharing stories with Derwin after my travels, because Derwin could offer insights that made me think differently, see a little more.

He was, above all, a kind-hearted person. He treated people with respect and warmth - our team at Business Food Solutions felt it, our customers felt it. People just liked him. Derwin will be missed by many, including me. I am better for having known him. - Joseph Fox
