

Deyoni W. Black

October 29, 1964 - October 5, 2010

DEYONI WANDA BLACK, the fourth child of John and Margaret Black, was born October 29, 1964 in Baltimore, Maryland. She was a blessed gift to them from God. On October 5, 2010, God with His infinite Wisdom saw fit to remove Deyoni from this earthly vineyard to a heavenly home.

From a little girl, Deyoni or Fatty Pooh as she was called, was always a people person- one who liked to mingle with others. She liked to be the head of the group and always willing to share her goodies and toys. You could always see friends visiting with her. She would call you on the phone many times to tell you how much she loved you.

Deyoni was educated in the Baltimore City Public School System. She held numerous jobs until her illness.

Deyoni was also an entertainer and one who loved to and really could “cut a rug”. The family loved to put on a tune and watch her move; she never got tired. Deyoni loved to cook and prepare dinners for family and friends.

Deyoni accepted Christ as her Lord and Savior at an early age. She loved to here God's Word in sermons and song. She served as a doorkeeper in the House of the Lord.

Her memory will forever be cherished by: her son, Damaris Thompson; her father John; her loving and devoted mother, Margaret; two brothers, John and Eugene Black; sister, Marlethia Black (Lisa); nephew, Andre Black; five aunts, Helen Smith, Cora Ford, Mattie Price, Ardena Johnson and Lucy Haire; two uncles, Phillip Johnson and Joseph Haire; three close childhoods, Evora McKissett-wallace, Robin Mont and Tanya Pindell; two godsons, Brandon Thomas and Carlos McKissett; godbrother, Kevin Maddox; two tttwors, Ciara Scott and Iyona Watts; and a host of other relatives and friends.

“ For Damaris, "Is it a Dream or is it Real?" One day I found you in eternal sleep; I tried to wake you as I began to weep. But all my pleas you could not hear. Oh, if I could have only kept you near. Away from the voices of those who went before; who beckoned you to come to that distant shore. I find it so very hard to believe that you have gone and I must grieve. I call out your name - you answer not. I look for you in every familiar spot. Everything seems so strange and surreal. I ask everyday is it a dream or real? Where are the soft brown eyes of affection? Where is the laughter and talk of childhood reflection? Where is the loving care when I was sick or sad? Where is the generous soul for which I was glad? Where is the forgiving and understanding heart? Where are the bonds that were there from the start? I miss all the little ways you showed you cared, for there were so many good moments we shared. Looking back on my life's assorted scenes, I realized you taught me what love truly means. You were my trusted confidante on whose loving support I could always depend.

I look at your smiling face in all my photos. Memories flood my mind as I touch the mementos from the happy times you and I have had. But now these bring tears and make me sad. For the time together went by in a wink. Life was not as long as we'd like to think. Sometimes memories bring comfort and make me smile. But there are times when grief takes over for a while. Friends offer gentle words and prayers to console and tell me what has happened to your loving soul.

Can it be true what they say of time healing grief? Is it enough when they say death has given you relief? Can we believe what others say of a better place, where our beloved ones rest in God's warm embrace. I should be happy you're free of pain and sorrow, and rejoice that you'll always have tomorrow. How can I then be so heartbroken and selfishly cry; return to me from that peaceful place where you lie!"

Now I look down at your name on a bronze burial plate. That says little of the loving light you have shown. It tells nothing of the wonderful person you were and only serves to remind me of the painful loss I endure. But I know your kind soul wants no tears or pain, instead you'd want warm memories and love to remain. Although I cried and stood grief-stricken by your grave, I promise not to forget the loving memories you gave. But still I miss you so very much my mother dear, and your caring words I once again long to hear. My heart's only solace is one day I will see you as before, beckoning me to come join you on that white distant shore.

“ Holidays are tough. Sure wish heaven had a phone. So I could hear your voice again and not feel so alone. I thought of you today. But that is nothing knew. I thought of you yesterday and days before that too. I think of you in silence and often speak your name. All I have are memories and pictures in a frame. Since I can not hear your voice, there's something I can do, I'll spend the coming holidays reminiscing you.

Marlethia Black - December 14, 2010 at 09:45 PM

“ She was with me when I was young and was gone in a blink of an eye. It comes to say - that at any moment someone you love can past away. Feeling the loss that I felt then and continue to feel today - will not just go away. Because when someone you love passes away - they don't just disappear - they stay in your heart forever and times you spent together alone - are the times you remember the most.

“ In loving memory of Deyoni Black. I don't think of her as gone away - her journey's just begun, life holds so many facets - this earth is only one. I think of her as resting from the sorrows and the tears in a place of warmth and comfort where there are no days and years. Think how she must be wishing that we could know today - how nothing but our sadness can really pass away. I think of her as living in the hearts of those she touched - for nothing loved is ever lost and she was loved so much.
