My sorrow wells up inside me and keeps pouring from my eyes and

“ Dear friends, one of my many fond memories of life with Andy included calling friends for Christmas and New Year's, sending cards and much later, emails. Andy was meticulous in his card selection for my parents and those he cared about. You are, no doubt in possession of one such card or email, yourself. As you can see, we did not get to offer our holiday greetings to everyone this time. Little did we know that Andy would be leaving us at such a special time of year. We would began the season starting with my December 2nd birthday and the beginning of Advent and weave through Teddy's birthday on the 22nd, enjoy a quiet Christmas, now that the children are adults, give a nod to Kwanzaa, usher in the New Year half asleep and half awake, but always hopeful, delight in Old Christmas (January 6th), as my grandmother called it and take down the Christmas tree the night following the last piece of birthday cake being eaten in Andy's honor. (I am glad that I insisted on that birthday party for him last year) Take a deep breath and it is Brian's birthday on the 26th of January. Long story short, I think Andy wanted to share the following few words marking the coming of 2014:

"As a Nigerian, I extend a WARM AND LOVING PEACEFUL YEAR TO MY FELLOW PEOPLE, Nigerian friends and hope that the heart of all Nigerians, Christian and Muslim people and all mankind will soften and realize we are all one mankind."

"As I feel the pain and suffering of Ibos in the Northern Nigeria, I pray to GOD, the KING of all Kings and creator of all creations to shower all creations with PEACE and LOVE, and to send a message to all minds and hearts to be able to open up and understand that we are all people and we desire all the same things in LIFE."

"May this year be one of change and HAPPINESS to all hearts, broken and otherwise."

Dearest Soror Toni, it is so kind and sisterly of you to offer loving comments as this bewildering time of reconstruction for the sons and Me. We are so glad that you took the time to reach out. Words can seem so inadequate at times like this, yet a healing balm when reread over and over again. Thanks. Jewel

Thank you Riggs for your prayers and support. Your kindness is greatly appreciated. The SONS are overwhelmed at this time. When they look back at how much their Dad was loved they will gain the strength to move forward into a stronger manhood than they have experienced so far. We can not thank you enough. Love, Jewel and Sons

“ Our family would like to express condolences to your family. May you find comfort from Jehovah God's Word The Bible. He assures us at 1 Corinthians 15:26 that "the last enemy death will be brought to nothing". Our prayers are with your family.

“ Dear Family, Alpha Brothers, Ngwa Community, Sorors and Friends:

It seems rather untimely to be saying farewell to Andy, my confidant of close to forty years and beloved father of our four children.

Throughout this time, Andy missed being away from his beloved country, Nigeria.

Andy's body will be received by his baby brother, Chief Sunday Onyebuchi Adiele in Port Harcourt, Nigeria following an approximately nineteen hour flight from Dulles International Airport in Washington, DC, USA.

May his soul rest in peace and perpetual light shine upon him, in Jesus name, Amen.

“Jewel, my thoughts and prayers are with you during the passing of your husband and my frat brother. I remember fondly the day the two of you stood before me to share your wedding vows. I regret that I will not be able to be with you on Saturday because of commitments at the church. May God's presence, power, and promises sustain you during this most difficult time.

Brother Ken, thanks for being there for us when Rev William Moore got stuck in Philadelphia on our wedding day. I have been to Durham many times to see my cousin Bruce and my classmate Paula, not knowing you continued your ministry there. Thanks for your continued prayers for Teddy, Eric, Brian (Afghanistan) Alex.

To Jewel, my boys, (especially my first born, Teddy), it saddens me that my dear Andy has departed too soon from us earthly ones. But, I do rejoice in knowing him since my freshman year at East Carolina University, along with Jewel and I being freshmen together. Moreover, I rejoice for Andy's new life in God's home. We all shall remember his sweet, sweet spirit, but we rejoice in Andy's finding God's sweet, sweet spirit. May each of you find peace in knowing that he is home!

SOROR RoRo:

You have lit a candle for Andy and that light lifts our spirits. Our many conversations over the years are indeed a blessing to Andy and me. As time alliw, please remember the young men in your prayers. May they find a fatherly figure to share their many questions and accomplishments with. Most of all may they remember that their heavenly FATHER sticks closer than a brother. again, thank you for reaching out even in the midst of your own challenges as primary care giver for dear Uncle Roland. God bless you both.
