Dorothy Foxworth, daughter of the late Elijah and Mary Washington, was born on January 23, 1937 in Baltimore, MD. She was called home on September 17, 2015 after battling a lengthy illness.

After raising her children, Dorothy continued to pursue her academic goals by enrolling in the Paul Laurence Dunbar Senior High School Adult Continuing Education Program, where she earned her high school diploma and graduated as class valedictorian. Before retiring from the Johns Hopkins Hospital Department of Medical Records in 1998, she held positions in education, nutrition and nursing at various facilities throughout Baltimore City. Prior to the onset of her illness, she attended the Saint Paul Baptist Church in East Baltimore.

Dorothy made numerous friends wherever she went and was admired for her keen fashion sense. She will be remembered as a fashion “icon” by many. She was a devoted mother and grandmother who loved her children and grandchildren dearly. She will truly be missed by everyone.
