

Geraldine O. Huff

December 20, 1922 - December 25, 2001

Geraldine Odessa Huff (Nee Tyler) was one of a set of fraternal twins born on December 20, 1922 in Washington, DC. She was adopted and raised by Robert and Connie Tyler. She departed this earth on December 25, 2001 after a brief illness. She spent her childhood in Westminster, MD, Gettysburg, PA, and Baltimore, MD. She was educated in the Baltimore City School system through the tenth grade and later received a GED. In 1939, she married John Edward Huff and of that union seven children were conceived. She was a devoted wife and mother who always put the interests of her family first. She ensured that her children had the best that she could provide to them. She truly was a self-taught and self-made woman. She worked as a domestic, a writer, an editor, and a childcare provider. In fact, she spent many years in the child care profession due to her great love for children. Because she had a never-ending quest for knowledge, she enjoyed reading. She was a prolific writer who was well known for her letters to the editors of various Baltimore newspapers. She loved to stay informed about local, national, and global politics. She also had a deep admiration for the arts. She loved music so much that she would often be heard singing along to the recordings of Sergio Franchi and Barbara Striesand. Her interest in arts and craft led her to teach herself how to both knit and crochet. She is survived by: six of her seven children, Elaine, Barbara, Mark, Jamie, Annette, and Rosemarie; devoted son-in-law, Don Lorandos; sister-in-law, Alberta Gibson; ten grandchildren; thirteen great-grandchildren; and a host of other relatives and friends. She is preceded in death by: John Edward Huff Sr.; John Edward Huff Jr.; and Jerl Huff.
