

Jewel D. Taylor

January 9, 1985 - December 5, 2014

JEWEL DARNEL TAYLOR was born in Baltimore, Maryland January 9, 1985. She was the daughter of Jacqueline “Jackie” Delores Taylor and the granddaughter of the late Katie Mae Taylor.

She was educated in Baltimore City Public Schools and graduated from Patterson High School in May of 2003.

As Jewel's body became impacted by her disease, her mind and spirit were kept alive with the love and support of her grandmother, aunt, caregivers, family and friends. In an effort to make sure Jewel experienced life to the fullest, Katie decided that she would take Jewel on her first cruise with a friend. Jewel enjoyed her trip immensely, so cruises became Katie and Jewel's “signature trip” and was a source of encouragement, fun, relaxation and bonding. In addition to traveling, Jewel was also a lover of shopping and clothes and was always excited about the latest fashions.

Jewel's continuous fight to live and the enormous strength that she exuded every day was a testimony of the power and faithfulness of God. Jewel's grandmother, Katie, was her “Heart” and served as an advocate for Jewel rarely ever leaving her side through her multiple health challenges and hospitalizations. Katie's unwavering commitment to Jewel's physical, spiritual and emotional health and happiness was a true testament of the unconditional love God displays to his children. “Aunt Lisa”, also served alongside her mother as a caregiver displaying her rich love for her only niece.

Jewel was a member of Southern Baptist Church where she attended services as her health permitted with her grandmother Katie and aunt Lisa.

Jewel leaves to cherish her memory: her mother, Jacqueline Taylor; aunt Felicia “Lisa” Taylor; uncles, Robert Allen (Mae) and Bill Allen; godparents, Larry Jones and Carolyn Butler and a host of cousins and friends.
