“ My brother, my friend. My, how the years have past since we were engaged in rap battles in the courtyard of Baltimore City College. You stood by my side then and this continued through my years in the Army, for at times I moved thousands of miles away, but on my return trips back to Charm City, you would always make time in your schedule to welcome me home with opened arms. This became a ritual. You introduce me to your family which made me feel important...Man I guess that's just what you did your entire life...made people feel important and worthy of all the good that life has to offer. I'm gonna miss you, but I will never forget your impact on my life. Much love to you and comfort and healing to your family. Peace.
