“ To Kimberly & Mario Mines and family
God's Littlest Angel (Mar'Asia Mines)

*Mommy & Daddy don't cry for me.
To walk the earth was not meant to be.
I'm with the angels and I watch you every day.
I know that you love me in a very special way.
I'm sorry our time was all too brief
In good time you'll overcome grief.
You'll see me every day
In the souls of children who pass your way.
I may be within the cheeky boy
with the dimple in his chin
Or the girl with the little golden curl.
I know you long to see me,
But there's nothing I can do.
Just believe me when I say this,
'I'm right there next to you.'
I'll send you little messages
So please try and understand,
For when your time is ready,
I'll be there to take your hand.
By God i was ulitimately chosen,
So to heaven, i must go.
Please know that I'm alright
Cause when you look in the sky
on a clear & starry night,
I will be the star that is shining so bright.*

I love you Mommy & Daddy, Good Night.

“ I had the pleasure of teaching Marasia in a tight-knit reading group with three other girls this school year. When I'd arrive to her classroom, she and a peer would often have their heads down, pretending to be asleep. I'd say "rise and shine", and they'd pop their heads up and say "we weren't sleeping Miss Loftin." Although I knew they weren't asleep, I'd always play along.

Too, upon my arrival, Marasia would sometimes innocently ask: "Why are you always smiling?" I'd reply that I was happy to be teaching reading to her and that I hope that my joy and excitement about learning would be contagious. Before long, Marasia learned to always greet me with a smile and a spirit of helpfulness. She would often volunteer to go and pick up one of her group members, and she often stuck around to help me tidy up after our daily sessions, even after I'd urge her to return to her assigned seat.

Along with teaching reading, I also taught my girls to be very respectful towards everyone in our group. Recently, Marasia seized the chance to also teach me a lesson about respect. While I was going over the instructions, one of the girls interrupted me and said, "I like your necklace." I politely replied, "that's not important", as I directed their attention back to the task at hand, Marasia then innocently said, "You could at least say thank you." I'll always remember the lesson that she taught that day: acknowledge the kind words and gestures from others, no matter how out of place they may seem at the time. It's their way of saying that they care, and that you matter; and there's never an inappropriate time for that.

To Marasia's family: Please know that she was and still is loved. Her energetic and helpful spirit lives on. My deepest sympathy, thoughts, and prayers remain with you all.

“ I was blessed to have Mar'Asia in my first grade class. Her smile was always contagious. She was always willing to help others. I loved seeing her proud of herself when she realized she was reading! I remember the dances/cheers she would try to teach me at recess. She was a beautiful girl both inside and out! May God comfort her grieving family and friends. She will be missed greatly.

“ My deepest sympathy goes out to the family of this beautiful young girl. The sting of death is something we will never get use to, especially when it comes to our children, but thanks to the promises of our heavenly father we don't have to. Soon, very soon, death and all the pain associated with it will be a thing of the past. Please find comfort in Isaiah 25:8. Take Care.

“ Please accept my deepest sympathies. And may you find comfort in the Holy scriptures, family and friends. I found comfort in the Bible promise that we will see our love ones again. The death of a loved one can indeed be the most upsetting experience of a lifetime. Recovering from grief may take months, a few years, or even longer. Just remember the acute pain you feel in the beginning will lessen in time and life will gradually seem less bleak and meaningless. There is an empty space where before there was a living human. The Scriptures make it clear that we have no reason to worry about the dead nor to be overwhelmed by sorrow. This is because, in God’s due time, dead loved ones will be restored to life. There is so many questions people ask. Why did my love one have to die? Why did God take my love one? Will I see my love one again? Did God need another angel? What is the condition of the dead? Was humans created by God to die? Where are the dead? The Holy Bible gives the truth to these questions. And truth from the Bible is what gives us hope and comfort to endure. There are two persons who knows how you feel deep within your heart, even when you speak no words. God know how you feel. (Psalms 51:17) Can you imagine how God felt when he saw his first born son die on the torture stake? God knows you need comfort and the scriptures gives us that comfort, especially when we are alone. One thing that can help you cope with your grief is to draw close to God and the resurrection hope. May Jehovah God give the family comfort and peace.

“ As Mar'Asia's former kindergarten teacher, it was a blessing to spend a year in the classroom with her and see her shining face in the school hallways. She brought joy and excitement to the classroom. Mar'Asia was always happy and willing to lend a hand to other students. She loved all of her classmates and they loved her. Mar'Asia was always fun to be around. Looking back at her kindergarten pictures, each one shows her smiling face. As her teacher, she brought joy to my heart; she was a great blessing to me. I know she is with God now and is well taken care of. I will miss her greatly and will pray for her grieving family. My heart feels broken because of her passing and at the same time grateful I had the opportunity to know her. Mar'Asia, we will all miss you very much.
