“ A Poem to My Aunt Pattie

*Aunt Pattie I miss you and always will this is so hard to get over like swallowing a bitter pill.
I know I shouldn't be crying because this is not how you'd want it to be knowing you're in your eternal home now singing with glee I know you are looking down on us probably proud of us all I remember when my mother passed away and I would walk to your home several times and you always told me how God would hold me and never let me fall I know I have to get through this and that I must be strong on the outside you can't tell it, but on the inside something is very wrong I know I will be sad for a while and realize I'll see you one day up there don't think I stopped missing you don't think I don't care I remember good times with lots of laughs as well the memories are all coming back to me now like a wonderful spell Auntie I hope you know you are missed a lot you were loved by so many you'll never be forgotten!!*

Love,
Your niece Barbara
