“ Meeting Ralston will forever change my life. There are few people in this world who truly represent Light and Love from the moment you enter their presence. This young man fought through many battles and never lost his light, his glow. In the time I spent with him and his family I have discovered the meaning of true courage. May your hearts be comforted knowing as a family you each gave him the gift of love as you sat with him, cried with him and laugh with him. I can only imagine the beautiful memories you will all share as his legacy lives in each of you. May the Lord bless you and keep you.

“ When I first moved from New York to Maryland Erica and Ray were the first set of my aunt Donna’s friends that I met. They became extended family to me and Raff became my cousin. As a teenager I would refer to him as my cousin. I remember him, my cousin Sherice and I playing video games together. Raff always had the video game remote. He treated us like we were his little sisters and even teased us like a big brother would do. Although years had past since we had seen each other, the news of his cancer returning hit me hard. After more than a decade of not seeing each other our first time seeing each other again was in his final days. Despite the fact that his body was weak, Raff’s memory was still intact and his mind strong. He remembered that I had gotten married and that I had kids. His body was shutting down and yet he still seemed strong in other ways. This will always be my lasting memory of him.
