

Rene C. Mobuary

May 29, 1954 - June 1, 2019

RENE C. MOBUARY, daughter of the late Willie Alston and Willie Mae Cox, was born on May 29, 1954 in Baltimore, Maryland. She left this world on June 1, after a long battle with illness.

We are here to celebrate the life of Rene; a mother, a wife, an aunt, and friend to many. She is survived by her husband, Winston Sr.; son, Winston Jr.; daughter, Shari; two grandsons, Lasawn and Orlando III; and granddaughter, Gabrielle; and a host of family and friends.

Rene was an outspoken woman who could talk for hours if you let her, and the conversation rarely remained PG-13. Her outspoken personality meant she made friends everywhere she went, and if you ever took her on a shopping trip you quickly realized that a few hold ups were just part of the process.

She loved roses and gadgets (even though she never quite figured out how to use them properly), and kids. Especially your kids!!!. If you bring your children in her presence, you don't stand a chance. If they want it they got it, and what you say doesn't matter because your kids are her kids. She was like that

She had an uncontrollable need to help people, as did all of her beautiful sisters. It was just her nature.

Through her life she was called Rene, Renae, Grandma, Aunt Rene, and the Snowball Lady. She will be greatly missed Universal law says that no matter is neither created nor destroyed, just repurposed, and with her beautiful soul there is no doubt she has found peace in the kingdom of heaven.
