

Robert Merrill Logan

January 7, 1946 - January 21, 2002

Robert Merrill Logan was born on January 7, 1946 in Pittsburgh, PA and was raised in Stockport, NY. He was educated at the Ichabod Crane Central School. At the age of 17, Robert joined the Army and served in Hawaii as a cook. He came to Baltimore after his discharge from the Army and there he married for the first time. From that union two sons were born Robert and Andre. On his 31st birthday, Robert married Yvonne Roundtree and became the father to Yvonne's daughter, Michelle. Robert, also known as "Logan," celebrated his 56th birthday and 25th wedding anniversary two weeks before his death of a heart attack on January 21, 2002. Robert was known for his friendliness. He expressed his thoughts and feelings through poetry. One of Robert's poems, "Eat to Live," was published. He wrote about varieties of subjects dear to his heart. Robert was fun loving and fond of playing practical jokes on those he knew and loved. Prior to his death Robert had found peace with God. In addition to his wife, Yvonne Roundtree Logan, daughter, Michele Simms; sons, Robert Jr., and Andre; Mr. Robert Merrill Logan, Sr., will be fondly remembered by two grandsons, Andre Dowing and Gregory Thomas, Jr., two granddaughters, Cameron and Tiara; father and mother-in-law, Charles and Mattie Roundtree; as well as a host of other relatives, friends and co-workers.
