VERNA J. GENTRY was born on October 13, 1952, at 11:23 a.m. in Johns Hopkins Hospital, Baltimore, Maryland to parents William Gentry (22), father from Virginia, who was a warehouse worker for Cake Cone Company and Lillian Patricia Brown (20) from Baltimore, Maryland. She was also a warehouse worker and that's how they met.

Verna's childhood home was 1416 North Aisquith Street, Baltimore, Maryland. She earned a Bachelor's Degree from Sojourner-Douglass College, Baltimore, Maryland.

She graduated in 1996 around the same time her son graduated from high school. He made her go back so they could graduate together. Then she went back to get her master's in human resources Management from the University of Phoenix.

Following events, she pursued a career at Bon Secours Women's Resource Center. While working there she helped abused women, fed them, helped with job placements and made them feel safe. She spent most of her time and efforts on helping women to have better lives for themselves all the way till she got sick leading to her retirement. She still tried to push through going through dialysis three times a week

. Verna enjoyed reading, watching bootleg movies, gambling, playing online gambling games and eating seafood.

Verna Gentry lives on through Alisha Wright who is no longer with us and her son, Jersey Snyder aka (Kill) or Joey and her grandsons, Jersey Snyder Jr. and Robin.
