

Vivian Elizabeth Drake

August 5, 1939 - June 19, 2009

Vivian Drake was the beloved daughter of the late Catherine Dewitt Henderson. Vivian was born in the heart of Baltimore, Maryland on August 5, 1939. Vivian's childhood was like many, she enjoyed playing with friends and getting in trouble. Vivian received her education in the Baltimore City Public Systems. Vivian left behind two sisters, Grace Homer and Cynthia Henderson, alone with one brother Henry Kenner. She was not the eldest, but Vivian was the one empowered being the authoritative one in the family. She protected her family through their trials and tribulations. During her older years, she was employed at McGraff and Gibbs Packing Company. At a later time, God connected the pathways of Vivian and the late Daniel Drake. The two of them married and lived their lives inseparable. They did not create any children of their own. However, Daniel accepted all of Vivian's children. Vivian birthed four daughters, Renee, Wanda, Angela and Sharlean Henderson; Vivian birthed her only surviving son, Norman Henderson. Vivian had left behind fifteen grandchildren, twelve great-grandchildren and a host of family and friends.

“ May you please accept my deepest condolences. I know how it feels to lose somebody you love deeply. In God's Word the Bible it helps us to appreciate that 'he will wipe every tears from thier eyes and death will be no more,neither will mourning nor outcry nor pain be any more the former things have passed away.'(Revelation 21:4)May this scripture bring you much comfort.##imported-begin##kari jackson##imported-end##
