March 7, 1925 - November 25, 2014

Wilson Gaddy, son of the late Charlie and Anna Gaddy, was born in Roberson County, North Carolina on March 7, 1925. He slipped away into eternal rest on November 25, 2014 in the afternoon hour at 1:30 pm.

Wilson, better known to many as “Daddy Gaddy” was reared in North Carolina. At the age of sixteen, he enlisted into the United States Army, where he served and was honorably discharged in Monroe, Louisiana. After about ten years in Louisiana, Wilson moved to Baltimore, Maryland and joined the VFW Post 285. He gained employment with Bethlehem Steel working in the steel mill in the coke furnace. He retired after forty-five years of service from Bethlehem Steel.

“Daddy Gaddy” was an avid sports fan. He loved watching all types of sports.

He enjoyed watching old western movies and reading the newspaper. He also was a conversationalist and would talk to you about everything from picking cotton to politics, his favorite.

Wilson was a lover of dogs and had three, two Doberman and a German Shepard. Wilson was the Casanova when it came to dressing. If and whenever you saw him, he was sharp with the latest style of clothes, hats and caps (Kango).

Wilson is survived by son, Reginald; two grandsons, Nathan (Tamika) and James; granddaughter, Octavia; nine great-grandchildren; and a life long companion, Denise Miller.

Wilson was preceded in death by daughter, Cassie Patricia; son, Frank Wilson; two brothers, Theodore and Teddy; and sister, Christine.

Wilson wrote his own life story, the last chapter is complete. How will we know about the sequel when he has fallen asleep?
